PROJECT NO. 41

"St. Stanislaus Seminary"

St. Stanislaus Seminary is located in Florissant, Missouri, and is the novitiate of the Jesuit Order.

Tradition is that this building was started in the year 1840 and was not completed and occupied until about nine years afterwards.

That the stone used in the construction of this building was quarried at Musick's Landing by the lay brothers, during the months not occupied by farming.

Also that the bricks (many thousands) were baked by the novices.

The doors and windows are of walnut and were donated by Bryan Mullanphy of St. Louis

Father P.J. Timmerman was the First Superior of the Seminary.

Information from: Rev. Francis Leahy, S.J.

EUGENE L. PREITSCH.
